Cody Guins values his faith, his family and hard work. He and his wife, Lauren, have two children - Ali Rose, a sophomore at Christoval High School and Tucker, a 4th grader at Christoval Elementary. The Guins Family have lived in Christoval for over three years and in San Angelo seven years before that. Cody is a native of south Louisiana and grew up mainly in the Houston area before attending and graduating from The University of Texas with an Architectural Engineering Degree. He has excelled in the Construction and Facilities Management Industry for 20 years and has worked for Angelo State University for 8 years as the Executive Director of Facilities Services. Cody has been coaching his kid's sports teams for the last 7 years and most recently has coached Tucker's Little League, Little Dribblers and Flag football teams, all made up of Christoval students. Cody has volunteered his time and efforts for various causes including Rust Street Ministries, ACE Mentor Program for San Antonio ISD, Habitat for Humanities, CanStruction, Turner School of Construction Management, and service as a math tutor for middle and high school students. Lastly, Cody served Johnson Street Church of Christ as the volunteer construction project manager for their $2.3M Christian Campus Center, in the heart of ASU's campus, which was successfully completed in late 2019.

With CISD's recent passing of a bond, incorporating major construction projects, Cody offers unmatched experience to offer CISD's administration, during the complex navigation of a major commercial construction campaign. His $200M construction management portfolio of higher education buildings will be an asset to the district and its taxpayers. He understands the importance of planning a complex project with financial constraints and treating every taxpayer dollar as it's his own. At his current post at ASU, he is tasked with the daily oversight, management and operations of a college campus totaling 2.5 million square feet of facilities. He understands the importance of creating safe, functional, and well-maintained learning environments for our students.

"As a Christian man, proud of my faith in Jesus, and as a seasoned professional in the Construction and Facilities Management industry, I'm committed to combining my faith and tested experience to improve our schools, making them places where our children can thrive academically and morally." – Cody Guins
